FEMA Awards State Of Rhode Island Nearly $31 Million For COVID Testing Costs

Release Date: juillet 11, 2022

BOSTON – The Federal Emergency Management Agency will be sending nearly $31 million to the State of Rhode Island to reimburse the state health department for the costs of providing testing during the COVID-19 pandemic.

The $30,998,531 Public Assistance grant will go to the Rhode Island Department of Health (RIDOH) for contracting with laboratory partners ACCU Reference Medical Lab, Dominion Diagnostics and East Side Clinical Laboratory to complete a total of 426,413 COVID-19 tests between April 2020 and May 2021.

RIDOH also provided medical supplies and other materials which were used at the Rhode Island State Health Laboratory, mobile test sites, and the community-based testing sites like the Convention Center in Providence and in grocery stores throughout the state. RIDOH deducted $2.5 million from its costs for estimated medical payments it received from insurance companies for the processing of the COVID-19 tests.

“FEMA is pleased to be able to assist the State of Rhode Island with these costs,” said FEMA Region 1 Regional Administrator Lori Ehrlich. “Providing resources for our partners on the front lines of the pandemic fight is critical to their success, and our success as a nation.”

FEM’s Public Assistance program is an essential source of funding for states and communities recovering from a federally declared disaster or emergency.

These grants brings the total awarded by FEMA to the State of Rhode Island to more than $499 million to reimburse the state for pandemic-related expenses.