

FEMA Offers Equal Access to All New Mexico Residents Affected by Wildfires

Release Date: 5? 16, 2022

SANTA FE, New Mexico – FEMA and the state of New Mexico are committed to providing disaster assistance to people with disabilities and access and functional needs. Assistance is also available for those who communicate in languages other than English.

Some individuals without a disability may have temporary or long-term conditions where they also need a little extra help but might not think to ask for it. FEMA offers extra assistance to people such as older adults, individuals who have difficulty with English, or those who have problems with transportation or finances. Be sure to answer all the reasonable accommodation questions on the application so we can see how we can help.

How to Apply

The fastest and easiest way to apply is by visiting DisasterAssistance.gov.

New Mexicans can also apply by calling the FEMA Helpline at 800-621-3362.

When you apply for assistance, have the following information readily available:

- A current phone number where you can be contacted
- Your address at the time of the disaster and the address where you are now staying
- Your Social Security number, if available
- A general list of damage and losses if you know what they are
- Your insurance policy number and the name of your agent or company

Reasonable Accommodations

If you need an accommodation or assistance due to a disability, ask FEMA at the time of applying or anytime throughout the assistance process. Here's how:

- Call the disaster assistance helpline at 800-621-3362. If you use a relay service, such as video relay service (VRS), captioned telephone service or others, give FEMA the number for that service.
- FEMA can provide interpreters, real-time captioning, and information in alternate formats such as large- print, audio, and electronic versions. The agency also provides free services to help New Mexico residents communicate with its staff and understand FEMA programs. Among the aids are:
 - Information available in accessible electronic formats on FEMA’s website and social media
 - Qualified American Sign Language interpreters
 - Qualified multilingual interpreters
 - Information written in multiple languages
