Scenario Nine: Pandemic Influenza

Welcome to PrepareAthon! A key element to successfully responding to and recovering from a major disaster is the overall preparedness of individual citizens and their families. With that in mind, we invite you to participate in a series of ‘What would you do?’ scenarios with your loved ones in order to assess your level of preparedness. These tabletop activities are intended to be low-stress conversation starters to encourage discussion, as the name implies, around your dinner table. We do not want to know your results; only that you participated. Following the scenario, we have included some discussion questions for your tabletop activity, as well as some helpful links to enhance your individual preparedness. Good luck and thank you for participating in America’s PrepareAthon!

Scenario: You have just finished dinner and are settling down to watch your favorite television show. You happen to catch a nightly news report that a new pandemic influenza seems to be sweeping across a neighboring state. You check your favorite social media page and see that people are either saying there’s nothing to worry about or that this is the ‘end of the world.’ Not wanting to panic, but feeling that it would be a good idea to be prepared just in case, you decide you should take action to get ready for the possibility of the pandemic influenza affecting your neighborhood.

Discussion Questions:
1. Where can you get information on the influenza (flu) that’s credible and accurate?
2. Discuss with your family and friends whether you feel it’s beneficial to receive the annual flu vaccines.
3. How can you get copies — including electronic versions — of health records from doctors, pharmacies and other sources, to store for your own personal reference?
4. What steps can you take to reduce the chances of becoming sick?
5. What should you do if you or anyone in your family becomes sick?
6. What supplies do you have in your family emergency kit?

Time to see how you did!
