RE: Section 106 Review Consultation, Hurricane Katrina
Eligibility Determination of New Orleans Medical Historic District
New Orleans, Orleans Parish
Applicants: Louisiana State University Health Science Center, Louisiana State University
Health Care Services Division and Tulane University

Dear Ms. Breaux:

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) will be providing funds authorized under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, P.L. 93-288, as amended, in response to the following major Disaster Declarations;

- 1) FEMA-DR-1603-LA, dated August 29, 2005, as amended
- 2) FEMA-DR-1607-LA, dated September 23, 2005.

FEMA is initiating Section 106 review for the above referenced properties in accordance with the Programmatic Agreement among FEMA, the Louisiana State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO), the Louisiana Office of Homeland Security and Emergency Preparedness (LOHSEP) and the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation dated December 3, 2004. The buildings of the New Orleans Medical Historic District were damaged during the declared disaster and it is anticipated that federal funding through FEMA's Public Assistance program will be provided (Undertaking) to the applicants for many of the buildings within the historic district. The applicants are expected to include Louisiana State University Health Science Center, Louisiana State University Health Care Services Division and Tulane University.

The New Orleans Medical Historic District includes 15 contributing buildings and three noncontributing buildings. Two buildings – Charity Hospital and Sister Stanislaus Memorial Building – have already been individually listed in or determined eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. FEMA has determined that the New Orleans Medical Historic District is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. If the historic district is determined to be eligible for listing in the National Register, FEMA will consult with the SHPO per the stipulations outlined in the Programmatic Agreement for undertakings affecting these properties.

A description of the historic district, eligibility determination, photographs, historic district boundary map, aerial map and USGS map are attached. FEMA is requesting your concurrence that

Eligibility Determination of the New Orleans Medical Historic District

Location: Roughly bound by Tulane Avenue on the northeast, South Liberty and LaSalle Streets on the southeast, Perdido Street on the southwest and South Claiborne Avenue on the northwest. New Orleans, Orleans Parish

Description

The New Orleans Medical Historic District is located in downtown New Orleans near the city's central business district. This district includes a collection of hospitals, medical schools and related facilities dating from the early 1920s to the 1950s centered around Charity Hospital. The historic district is generally bounded by Tulane Avenue on the northeast, South Liberty and LaSalle Streets on the southeast, Perdido Street on the southwest and South Claiborne Avenue on the northwest. The historic district includes 15 contributing buildings and three noncontributing buildings. Of the 15 contributing buildings two have been individually listed in or determined eligible for the National Register of Historic Places (National Register) – Charity Hospital (determined eligible) and Sister Stanislaus Memorial Building (listed in the National Register).

The facilities of the New Orleans Medical Historic District are currently associated with the following institutions: Louisiana State University Health Science Center, Louisiana State University Health Care Services Division, Tulane University and U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. The majority of the buildings within the historic district are expected to have undertakings (projects) related to FEMA funded activities. The district boundaries were delineated to encompass the medical facilities surrounding Charity Hospital that were constructed within the period of significance spanning from 1926 to 1950, encompassing the construction dates of the facilities. Modern medical facilities, although related in use, have been excluded from the boundaries when possible due to their recent construction date. The buildings within the historic district are listed below including address, construction date, status to the district and the indication of whether an undertaking is anticipated.

Architecture

The New Orleans Medical Historic District displays popular architectural styles of the 1920s to 1950s applied to medical facilities. Two buildings constructed in the 1920s display elements of the Neoclassical style. The John Dibert Tuberculosis Memorial Hospital Building, completed in 1926, has a colonnaded entry porch, pilasters and classical cornice detailing. The Delgado Building, completed in 1927, also displays elements of the Neoclassical style in the elaborated entrance and enhanced cornice with dentils.

The majority of the district's most prominent buildings were constructed in the late 1920s and 1930s in the Art Deco style. The Art Deco style, originating in the 1920s and popular in the 1930s, is characterized by simple, clean shapes with a streamlined look. The style uses a repeat of geometry through the building and ornamentation to achieve a dynamic or modern effect.

Charity Hospital and Sister Stanislaus Memorial Hall (Charity School of Nursing) are distinctive examples of the Art Deco style and were designed by the prolific New Orleans architectural firm of Weiss, Dreyfous and Seiferth.

Other buildings in the historic district displaying the Art Deco style include the Lapeyre and Miltenberger Convalescent Home, the original building of the LSU Medical School, the original building of the Tulane Medical School (Hutchinson Memorial Building) and four ancillary buildings of Charity Hospital including the General Services Building, Maintenance Building, Laundry and Power House. These buildings demonstrate a streamlined appearance and display characteristics of the Art Deco style through the use of simple bas reliefs, curved wall surfaces, and horizontal and vertical scoring on the building. The Lapeyre and Miltenberger Convalescent Home was also designed by the New Orleans architectural firm of Weiss, Dreyfous & Seiferth.

Several buildings in the district from 1950s display limited elements of the International style. The International style, which was popular for hospital architecture during the period, is characterized by flat roof, minimal exterior ornamentation, monolithic volumes, monochromatic color scheme, and large expanses of exterior glass. Elements of the International style are demonstrated in the 1952 addition to the LSU School of Medicine Building, Charity's Male Interns Home, the Veterans Administration Hospital and the Veterans Administration Managers and Nurses Quarters. These buildings display flat roofs, bands of windows, and flat roof overhangs over windows and doors.

Overall the buildings within the New Orleans Medical Historic District retain a high degree of integrity. Alterations to the contributing buildings of the district are limited and do not detract from the overall character of the district. A few buildings display additions but generally these are not significant intrusions to the district. In some cases these additions represent the expansion of medical facilities in the 1950s and have gained historical significance, such as the LSU School of Medicine Building's 1952 addition. Other intrusions in the proposed historic district include two modern buildings and a parking garage. These modern buildings and the parking garage, although noncontributing elements of the historic district, do not detract from the cohesive nature of this collection of medical-related buildings.

History¹

The New Orleans Medical Historic District comprises the city's oldest and most significant concentration of medical facilities. This group of medical facilities, including hospitals and medical schools, is located near the city's central business district with Charity Hospital at the heart. Charity Hospital, founded in 1736, was first located on Tulane Avenue in 1832-33, with the present hospital building constructed in 1938. The facilities of the New Orleans Medical Historic ¹ Information on the history of the Tulane Medical School was obtained from John Duffy's The Tulane University Medical Center: One Hundred and Fifty Years of Medical Education (Baton Rouge, LA: Louisiana State University Press, 1984). Information on Charity Hospital and related facilities was obtained primarily from Dr. John Salvaggio's New Orleans' Charity Hospital: A Story of Physicians, Politics and Poverty (Baton Rouge, LA: Louisiana State University Press, 1992).

District have played a significant role in providing health care to the city of New Orleans and in training the state's medical personnel. The district demonstrates the growth of health care facilities from the early twentieth century to mid-century developed to serve the evolving needs of the community of New Orleans. The development of these facilities was supported by both government and private efforts, demonstrating not only the significance of these facilities in providing health care, but also in attracting businesses and citizens to New Orleans.

The New Orleans Medical Historic District comprises buildings constructed from the late 1920s to the early 1950s representing several health and educational institutions in New Orleans and the state of Louisiana including Charity Hospital, Tulane Medical School, LSU Medical School and the VA Hospital. Three buildings from the 1920s and 1930s supported Charity Hospital's work prior to the construction of the present hospital building in 1938. These include the John Dibert Tuberculosis Memorial Hospital built in 1926 with funds from Mrs. John Dibert, the Lapeyre and Miltenberger Convalescent Home constructed in 1933 with funds provided by Coreen Lapeyre Miltenberger and others, and the Delgado Building constructed in 1927.

A new Charity Hospital was constructed on the hospital's Tulane Avenue site in 1938 utilizing federal relief funds of the New Deal era. The Sister Stanislaus Memorial Building was also constructed in 1938 using federal funds to house the Charity School of Nursing. Other extant facilities constructed during this period to support Charity Hospital include the General Services Building, Laundry, Power House and Maintenance Building. These buildings are believed to have also been built with Federal Relief funds.

Tulane Medical School and the LSU Medical School were both established in New Orleans and located adjacent to Charity Hospital. Both medical schools -Tulane Medical School and LSU School of Medicine – used Charity Hospital as a teaching hospital and locating them geographically near this facility was advantageous. Tulane Medical School was founded in 1834 as the Medical College of Louisiana and was the first medical school in the Southwest. In 1847 the Medical College of Louisiana became the medical department of the newly chartered University of Louisiana. The University of Louisiana faced economic issues following the Civil War and Paul Tulane endowed a foundation to support education in the city of New Orleans. As a result the institution was refounded as Tulane University of Louisiana in 1884. Although much of the university moved to its present uptown location on St. Charles Avenue beginning in 1894, the medical school remained wholly or in part in the downtown area. A new medical school building was erected on Canal Street in 1893 (believed to be nonextant). Even when the medical school was divided between the uptown and the downtown campuses, clinical work remained at the uptown campus, near Charity Hospital.

Expansion of the Tulane downtown medical campus began through the generous donation of Alexander Charles Hutchinson. Hutchinson, president of the Morgan Steamship Line and Houston and Texas Railroad, donated the bulk of his estate to Tulane University for the benefit of its Medical Department. In 1930 the Josephine Hutchinson Memorial Building on Tulane Avenue across the street from Charity Hospital was dedicated. This new building expanded Tulane's medical school facilities at the downtown campus by providing offices, clinical space, X-ray laboratories, a library, and auditorium. By 1940, an underground tunnel was completed between Tulane's Hutchinson Building and the newly completed Charity Hospital building utilizing Works Progress Administration funds. The construction of the tunnel demonstrates the close working relationship of these two institutions. In the 1950s and early 1960s, the Hutchinson Building received two additions. The first addition, known as the Libby Memorial Building was completed in 1955, included the construction of a 10-story addition providing for additional research and academic space. The second addition, completed in 1963, included a nine-story addition to the Hutchinson Building that relocated the anatomy, chemistry, and physiology departments from the uptown campus and included a student lounge, bookstore, and cafeteria. The project also included the renovation of the original Hutchinson Building and the construction of a seven-story parking garage.

Since its beginnings, the Tulane Medical School had close ties to Charity Hospital since it did not have its own hospital facility until 1976. Charity Hospital was used as a teaching facility and many of the medical students conducted their internships at the institution. In 1925 Charity Hospital assigned 500 beds for teaching to be known as "Tulane Services in Charity Hospital" formalizing the relationship between the two institutions. The relationship continued between the two institutions and by 1956 approximately 90% of Tulane's undergraduate teaching was conducted at Charity Hospital. Tulane Hospital, completed in 1976, was located across the street from Tulane's Hutchinson Building and Charity Hospital, continuing the centralization of medical facilities in this area of downtown New Orleans. The relationship of Tulane and Charity Hospital continued after the construction of this facility.

The creation of the LSU School of Medicine was granted through a charter of the Louisiana Legislature in 1877; however, it was 53 years later before the work to create the school began under Governor Huey P. Long's administration. The LSU School of Medicine building was erected on Tulane Avenue next to Charity Hospital in 1931 to house the state's new medical school. The facilities of the LSU Medical School were expanded with a large addition to the school building facing Tulane Avenue in 1952.

Following World War II there was an expansion of medical facilities in the New Orleans Medical Historic District. The largest addition to the medical district was the construction of the VA Hospital facilities in 1950 providing a second hospital facility in the center of New Orleans behind Charity Hospital. The Charity Hospital complex was also expanded after the war with the construction of the Male Interns' Home in 1950, a maintenance building constructed c.1950, and a warehouse completed in 1961. During this time period, both medical school facilities were also expanded with large building additions, described above.

Eligibility recommendation

The New Orleans Medical Historic District is eligible for the National Register under Criterion A: Health/Medicine for the significant role these institutions have played in providing health care to the people of New Orleans and training the state's medical personnel. The district is the city's oldest and largest concentration of medical facilities with Charity Hospital at the center. Since its founding in 1736, Charity Hospital has been one of New Orleans' major providers of health care, serving those most in need. The facility and related buildings have continuously played a key role in the city's health care system and was the only Level 1 trauma center in the southern half of the state until its closure following Hurricane Katrina. The Tulane University School of Medicine and the LSU School of Medicine have served as major teaching institutions of the state's medical personnel. The other major institution in the district, the Veterans Administration Hospital, represents the mid-twentieth century expansion of medical facilities in central New Orleans. Collectively, the New Orleans Medical Historic District represents a significant concentration of facilities that have evolved and expanded throughout the twentieth century to provide healthcare and support the needs of the citizens of New Orleans.

RE: Repair or Replacement of Healthcare Facilities Comprising the Medical Center of Louisiana at New Orleans (MCLNO) that were Damaged by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, New Orleans, LA
Applicant: Louisiana Division of Administration, Office of Facility Planning and Control

Dear Ms. Breaux:

As a result of damages from Hurricanes Katrina (DR-1603-LA) and Rita (DR-1607-LA), the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) received a request from the State of Louisiana, Division of Administration, Facility Planning and Control (FP&C) to provide assistance to the Medical Center of Louisiana at New Orleans (MCLNO) located at 1532 Tulane Avenue, New Orleans, LA. FEMA recently notified you that it was initiating consultation pursuant to Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act for this Undertaking.

FEMA has identified four Alternatives, including the No Action Alternative. FEMA has determined that the No Action Alternative is not an Undertaking subject to Section 106 review. FEMA will analyze the three remaining Alternatives as part of the Section 106 review for its proposed Undertaking and has identified an Area of Potential Effect (APE) representing the area(s) in which standing structures may be affected for each of these three Alternatives. FEMA has also determined the National Register eligibility of standing structures located within each APE. FEMA will consult with the State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO) regarding the delineation of APEs for areas in which archeological properties may be affected as well as and identification and evaluation of archaeological properties in a subsequent step of the Section 106 review.

This letter requests SHPO's concurrence on FEMA's determination of the Standing Structures APE for each of the three Alternatives and FEMA's determinations regarding the National Register eligibility of standing structures located within each APE pursuant to "Programmatic Agreement Among the FEMA, the SHPO, the Louisiana Office of Homeland Security and Emergency Preparedness, and the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation” executed in December 2004 (2004 Statewide PA). These APEs are subject to change as more information about the project is developed and we will consult with your office at that time.

1st Alternative: Repair MCLNO in Place:

The APE for this alternative is the existing footprint of the MCLNO campus, as illustrated in Figure 1. This APE is based upon the assumptions that repair work will not require pile driving and that no new construction will take place.
