Department of Agriculture (USDA)	Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS)	Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative (GLCI)	ENVI	Technical Assistance; Public Education.	The Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative (GLCI) was founded to provide high quality technical assistance on privately owned grazing lands on a voluntary basis and to increase the awareness of the importance of grazing land resources. Established in 1991, GLCI is carried out through coalitions of individuals and organizations functioning at the local, state, regional, and national levels. The coalitions include livestock producer organizations, scientific and professional grazing resource organizations, conservation and environmental groups, and state and federal natural resource and agricultural agencies. Pasture walks, conferences and newsletters keep graziers informed about the latest grazing techniques.	Anyone with grazing lands can receive technical assistance through the program. Plant Materials Program	Many of today's environmental challenges can be addressed through the use of plants. Plants hold soil in place, protect stream banks and shores, filter pollutants, offer food for livestock, and cover for wildlife. They heal the land after wildfire and mining, floods, and drought. They beautify our surroundings. The mission of the Plant Materials Program has always been to find plant solutions to solve conservation problems. Plant Materials Centers (PMCs) around the Nation have developed over 600 conservation plant releases of grasses, legumes, forbs, shrubs, and trees. Finding these uniquely evolved plants to meet specific conservation needs has been, and continues to be, the focus of the Plant Materials Program. These plants literally provide protection for millions of acres across our Nation. No tool offers more versatility or is more cost effective for long-term environmental protection and improvement than plants. Lodestar Foundation	The foundation makes grants for organizational capacity-building, technical assistance, and to provide funds to facilitate active cooperation among nonprofits. Rather than focusing on specific fields of interest like traditional foundations, our goals are to support nonprofits by encouraging philanthropy generally and to serve as a catalyst for change by focusing on reforming process – the way nonprofit business is done. The Lodestar Foundation seeks to maximize the leverage of philanthropic dollars and engagement through the pursuit of two strategies:	Giving nationally and internationally	Lois Savage, President The Lodestar Foundation 4455 East Camelback Road, Suite 215-A Phoenix, AZ 85018 602-840-4800 lsavage@lodestarfoundation.org	http://www.lodestarfoundation.org/
