Meeting/Conference

State:

MD

Event name:

Maryland's GIS For Emergency Management Communities (2-day event)

Event description:

This is an effort to enhance communication yet work hand in hand during many emergencies and to educate GIS colleagues that do not have a clear understanding of the strict methodology that goes into emergency management (ICS, NIMS, mitigation funding, training exercises, etc). Likewise, to create awareness within the emergency management community of how powerful of a planning, response, recovery and mitigation tool GIS can be.

Going deeper, within Maryland's emergency management community there is a need for a seamless cross-jurisdictional communication platform accessible at the local, state and federal levels. The Maryland State Geographic Information Committee (MSGIC) Executive Committee, the State Geographic Information Office (GIO) and the Maryland Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) feel much of this communication gap can be bridged by bringing these two communities together using GIS. The goal is to build upon existing technology and data while addressing the needs of all levels of government. Out of this initiative it is planned to see annual testing and refinement of communication platforms to be integrated into emergency preparedness plans at all jurisdictional levels. This meeting was an opportunity to promote community preparedness and demonstrate the importance of partnership.

Event Name:

Severe Weather Program

Event Description:

1st grade teachers across Washington County are given the opportunity for their classes to participate in the Severe Weather Program. This is the first year for this program to be offered around the County. Last year the program was piloted in Rockland Woods Elementary School in Hagerstown, MD. Participating teachers are provided with a curriculum and teaching aids. Students are asked to illustrate a type of severe weather in a brochure. Brochures are judged by school. The top brochure from each school is then entered into a County-wide contest. The top students win a variety of prizes. Event was highlighted in local paper
