Emergency protective measures are actions taken to eliminate or lessen immediate threats to lives, public health or safety, or to reduce significant additional damage to public or private property in a cost-effective manner. Approved funding may include overtime pay for essential personnel carrying out these activities and short-term costs directly related to specific emergency health and safety tasks.

FEMA’s Public Assistance program provides grants to eligible government organizations and certain private non-profit organizations for debris removal, life-saving emergency protective measures and the repair, replacement, or restoration of disaster-damaged facilities. The program also encourages protection of these
