

FEMA Authorizes Funds to Fight South Dakota's Schroeder Fire

Release Date: March 29, 2021

DENVER – This afternoon, FEMA authorized the use of federal funds to help with firefighting costs for the Schroeder Fire burning in Pennington County, South Dakota near Rapid City.

FEMA Acting Regional Administrator Nancy Dragani approved the state's request for a federal Fire Management Assistance Grant (FMAG) after receiving the request this afternoon and determining that the fire threatened such destruction as would constitute a major disaster.

At the time of the request, the Schroeder Fire was threatening more than 300 homes, which were under an evacuation order. Powerlines in the area are also being threatened. The fire started today and has burned in excess of 1,500 acres.

The authorization makes FEMA funding available to pay 75 percent of the state's eligible firefighting costs under an approved grant for managing, mitigating and controlling designated fires. These grants do not provide assistance to individual home or business owners and do not cover other infrastructure damage caused by the fire.

Fire Management Assistance Grants are provided through the President's Disaster Relief Fund and are made available by FEMA to assist in fighting fires that threaten to cause a major disaster. Eligible items can include expenses for field camps; equipment use, repair and replacement; mobilization and demobilization activities; and tools, materials and supplies.

With the FMAG authorization, additional funding is made available through the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program (HMGP) Post Fire for the mitigation of wildfire and related hazards, such as flood after fire or erosion. Some eligible wildfire project types include defensible space measures, ignition-resistant construction, and hazardous fuels reduction.
