

FEMA Awards Brown University Over $1.6 Million for COVID Testing Costs

Release Date: January 12, 2022

BOSTON – The Federal Emergency Management Agency will be sending more than $1.6 million to the State of Rhode Island to reimburse Brown University for the costs of providing tests to students, faculty and staff during the COVID-19 pandemic.

The $1,636,252 FEMA Public Assistance grant will reimburse the private research university in Providence for the cost of purchasing and distributing 141,000 COVID-19 rapid antigen test kits between January and June 2022.

“FEMA is pleased to be able to assist Brown University with these costs,” said FEMA Region 1 Regional Administrator Lori Ehrlich. “Providing resources for our institutions of higher education to combat the COVID-19 pandemic is critical to their success, and to our success as a nation.”

FEMA’s Public Assistance program is an essential source of funding for states and communities recovering from a federally declared disaster or emergency.

This grant brings the total awarded by FEMA to the State of Rhode Island to over $607 million to reimburse the state for pandemic-related expenses.
