

Don't Get Scammed: Protect Yourself from Contractor Fraud

Release Date: ?? 27, 2021

DENTON, Texas – State and federal recovery officials urge disaster survivors in the 16 designated counties to register for disaster assistance as soon as possible. If you have insurance and are applying for assistance for damages your home sustained following the winter storms, you must also file a claim with your insurance company.

The quickest and easiest way to apply is by visiting www.disasterassistance.gov. If it is not possible to register online, call 800-621-3362 (TTY: 800-462-7585).

Oklahomans are also asked to watch for and report any suspicious activity or potential fraud.

Disasters often bring communities together but con artists, identity thieves and other criminals may target survivors. The most common types of post-disaster fraud include phony housing inspectors, fraudulent building contractors, bogus pleas for disaster donations, fake offers of municipal or federal aid and charging for free services.

Scam attempts can be made over the phone, by mail or email, through the internet, or in person. It is important to remain alert, ask questions and always ask for identification when someone claims to represent FEMA or another government agency. Con artists are creative and resourceful. If an offer sounds too good to be true, it should be questioned.

Here are some tips to protect yourself:

- Don't wire money or pay with reloadable debit cards or gift cards. There is no legitimate reason to request those forms of payment.
- Don't offer personal financial information over the phone. Know who you are dealing with and always ask for identification.

- If your project involves roof repair, make sure that the contractor is registered with the Oklahoma Construction Industries Board (www.ok.gov/cib/ or 405-521-6550).
- Get the agreement in writing. Read the contract carefully, and if you don't understand every word, take it to an expert. Never sign a contract with blank spaces to be filled in.
- Make sure the contract details all work to be performed, the costs, a projected completion date and how to negotiate changes and settle disputes.
- Do your research. Scam artists will usually come to you to offer their services — either at your door, on the phone or through email — so be especially wary of solicitors.
- Get estimates from multiple contractors and your insurance company. Reject any offer that seems too good to be true.
- Ask for references from past customers.
- Use the Better Business Bureau, www.bbb.org, and internet search engines. Fraudulent firms change names frequently, so search the web for their address and phone number, and include terms like “review,” “scam” and “complaint.”
- FEMA does not certify contractors.
- Verify insurance. Contractors should have disability and workers' compensation insurance. If they don't, you may be liable for accidents on your property.
- Make sure contractors have the proper licensing and are bonded.
- Ensure the contractors obtain the necessary permits to do the job.
- Demand satisfaction. Don't sign completion papers or make final payment until the work is done correctly.
- Take a picture of your contractor, their vehicle and license plate.
- Take a picture of your contractor's business card and driver's license.
- Report your concerns. Potential fraud should be reported to your local law enforcement agency.
